James Kennedy of Burlington, who filled the position of Revenue Collector the past two years under the Democratic administration, gives way to Major McCuin, a Republican appointed. Mr. Kennedy very faithfully and acceptably filled the position and his courteous treatment of all who had business with him, won many friends. In his retirement the best wishes of many go with him. Mr. Kennedy had a very competent corps of assistants and the work of the office was well executed by them under his careful direction.

BIG WEEK PROMISED AT STATE FAIR

Exhibits Coming from Many States—Associated Industries to Bring Exhibits from Springfield

The outlook for a successful Vermont State fair could not be more promising. Secretary Fred L. Davis and his assistants are giving their full time to list and assign the many exhibits that will be seen in every department.

When the fair opens on Monday, Oct. 3, it is expected to have everything in readiness for the public.

Vermont is making a big showing at the New England States Exposition at Springfield, Mass., and this extensive exhibit is to be moved from Springfield to the Vermont State fair. It will occupy a whole building.

The trotting schedule will begin on Tuesday, Oct. 4, and continue each day of the fair except Friday, when the whole day will be given up to auto racing and polo. In the racing schedule there are large strings of horses and each event shows a big list of entries. There will be some of the best horses in New England in the events.

Wherever auto polo has been seen this season it has attracted large gatherings. It is said to be the most hazardous sport of the period and as the game is played directly in front of the grandstands and on the track, spectators will have the opportunity of witnessing every feature of the game.

The cattle entries, which will be large, will show herds from several states and from the stables of many famous breeders.

The policy of the management this season will be to issue no return checks, and for this reason every patron coming by auto is requested to park his machine in the parkings within the grounds.

The eating facilities will be found to be the best. The restaurants have been arranged to feed a greater number of people than heretofore and chefs have been engaged who are accustomed to taking care of large crowds.

"We feel," says Secretary Davis, "that the Vermont State fair this year will delight all patrons in every way."

A Very Fine Entertainment

The musical recital, given here last Saturday night under the direction of Mme. Wyse Fournier of Boston, was one of the finest events ever given here. The unfavorable weather, together with the fact that it was Saturday night prevented the large attendance anticipated. However, there was a good-sized audience and those present had the pleasure of witnessing an entertainment very much out of the ordinary, in that it was of a high order and very finely rendered.

The principal characters, the chorus and the little ones, in fact all who had part were students of Mme. Fournier, who had them under instruction for the past three months and that they showed excellent results from her careful tutelage was shown by the excellent manner in which they all filled their parts.

Part I of the recital was scene from "Il travatore, the Bohemian Girl and part 2 was French opera, interspersed with musical sketches. In part one Miss Natalie Noyes of this place had the leading part of Arline; Thaddeus, her associate, was Eben Barrows, of Morrisville and they rendered their difficult parts in a very admirable manner. Miss Noyes sang her parts in a very sweet and effective manner. Miss Alice Tyndall, who has a remarkably fine soprano voice had the part of Queen of the Gypsies and her singing was rendered with telling effect.

Misses Isadore Hood, Gertrude Finnegan and Martha Tynall filled the part of the Gypsy Trio and rendered their parts in an impressive manner.

A very pretty song was finely rendered by Mrs. Chas. Raymore of Morrisville. Her sweet voice being especially adapted to this.

A musical sketch, "Mary and Pat," was nicely rendered by two little Boyin children. Although they could not speak a word of English they faultlessly rendered their Irish song.

Others who had part in the Gypsy chorus were—Misses Irish, Black, Fairbanks, Thorpe, Hood, Finnegan, Raymore, Wallace, Boyin and Martha Tyndall, and Messrs. Brown, Black, Boyin, Gonyeau and Barrows.

During the evening two very fine piano selections were rendered by Miss Lillia Noyes of Morrisville. Her skill as a musician was finely brought out on this occasion and received hearty applause.

In the French Opera, Mme. Fournier was the Queen of Sheba; Miss Alice Tyndall, the Countess; Misses Martha Tyndall and Juliette Boivin, the Twin Sisters; Miss Natalie Noyes, Jeanette, Miss Gertrude Finnegan, Grandmother Catherino and Armond Boivin, the Little Drummer.

The "Slaves" who rendered the classic dance, were the young ladies who were in the chorus in the first part.

A very pretty vocal duette, "The Judge's Sentence," was that rendered by Misses Marjorie Scribner and Mildred Goodette, the latter taking the part of the young man. Both had their lines perfect and were heartily applauded.

Mrs. Thos. Finnegan added much to the success of the event by assisting in her artistic way at the piano.

All who participated in the entertainment had their parts admirably and received great applause. The event closed with the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner."

Altogether the entertainment was a very fine one, the parts were well taken and all showed the careful and thorough training they had received from their instructor.

Mme. Fournier was much pleased with the success of the affair and felt well repaid for the long and arduous work required to make it the success it was. She highly appreciates the attention and courtesy shown her while here and promises to come again next summer and give another entertainment.

The entertainment was for the benefit of St. Theresa's church.

How Bank Depositors Utilize The Mails

The reliability of the United States postal system has brought the best possible banking facilities within reach of all savings depositors. Distance is no longer a factor in choosing a depository.

The discerning depositor may patronize the bank that upon investigation demonstrates its superiority as a safe depository for funds. A general recognition of this fact is responsible for the remarkable growth of the Lamoille County Savings Bank & Trust Company, located in Hyde Park, Vermont, a town of 1323 inhabitants. This Bank has today total deposits of $2,402,456.00.

These patrons do not consist entirely of nearby residents, but those in every part of the state of Vermont and even beyond its borders. Indeed depositors have been received from every state in the Union, from England and the Canadian Provinces, from Cuba, the Canal Zone, the Philippine Islands, India and China.

The reason for the great popularity of the Lamoille County Savings Bank & Trust Company is its established policy of giving first consideration to the safety of deposits in its care. Its reputation for conservative investment has been merited through years of careful effort in selecting only securities bearing a conservative safety. This policy, together with resources ample to meet every requirement, and a directorate consisting of men of recognized ability makes this institution stand out as a desirable depository for the protection of savings.

There is nothing mysterious in its operation, and upon request, any depositor may receive such information in connection with the Bank's condition as is desired.

Best Crabs From Chesapeake Bay.

The Chesapeake bay blue crab, the largest specimen found along the Atlantic coast, is considered the best. While these crustaceans were very plentiful a few years ago, it is becoming evident that unless a "closed season" is declared they will become as rare and high priced as terrapin. The little pea crabs, found within oyster shells, are considered a delicacy, while the cancer magister, the large crab of the Pacific coast, is extensively used for food in that part of the country.
